A Green Reboot After Pandemic

Every tree counts.

Make a difference now with our technology.

The Coronavirus pandemic is a wake-up call to stop exceeding the planet's limits. Governments are containing the pandemic with the mantra of "Follow The Science". We can use science to design our business that will mitigate the threats of climate change, biodiversity loss and pandemics. We must start investing in what matters, by laying the foundation for a green, circular economy that is anchored in nature-based solutions and geared toward the public good.

The COVID-19 crisis shows us that it is possible to make transformational changes overnight. We have suddenly entered a different world with a different economy. Governments are rushing to protect their citizens medically and economically in the short term. But there is also a strong business case for using this crisis to usher in corporate-wide systemic change.

Our workplace is ever-evolving and during this pandemic, it was hit with a shock of seismic proportions. Suddenly we need to rely 100% on digital to conduct all forms of communications with our customers, suppliers and employees. Traditionally we relied on paper and in Malaysia, many companies are still relying on paper. Due to this pandemic, we are suddenly shoved into the digital world 100%. Suddenly Malaysian businesses have transformed into the digital universe. However, most Malaysian businesses are ill-prepared for this sudden shift.

To insulate the business against future shocks, there must be a determination to shed the dependency on paper and adopt digital documents – end to end. This means, from document capture, document generation and document archiving. SL Information Solutions have the complete end to end solution that covers all the processes of document and content capture, document generation and disbursement and finally document archiving. Our MountainTop solution is a proven robust solution that caters well to Malaysia SMEs who are looking for a green reboot after this pandemic.

Document capture solutions provide for scanning of content from suppliers and customers directly into back-office applications with workflow approval – this is just an example of one scenario. Document generation and disbursement usually pertain to customers and suppliers facing documentation such as invoices, customer statements and purchase orders which are generated in PDF or HTML5 format for electronic disbursement usually via email. Finally, all these electronic documents that are received and generated needs to be archived electronically for future reference and retrieval.

SL Information Solutions Digital Communications solution is the answer to your business if you intend to have a green reboot after the pandemic is over.
